Janice Tooley, All Rise Attorneys for Climate & Environmental Justice

Janice has been practicing as an environmental attorney since 2013 and has a unique skill set in both environmental management and law. She initially trained in ecology and environmental management, and worked as an environmental consultant, facilitator and environmental impact assessment (EIA) practitioner for many years before pursuing a career as an environmental lawyer.

She is highly skilled in the legal and technical aspects of EIA and all things to do with environmental licensing, compliance and administrative action. She believes that for the most part, South Africa has good environmental policy and law, but that it is the implementation thereof that fails us. In order to achieve just and effective environmental solutions, people need to be empowered and know their environmental rights and obligations. Government also needs to play its part by upholding these rights, enforcing the law and promoting best practice.

Sharing knowledge is as important to Janice as gaining it. She is an experienced trainer, facilitator and speaker.
